The show will be a five minute segment on topics, trends and issues related to "Credentialing Management Solutions for Today's Health Care Provider". Guests on the show will be Tammy Luker CEO Nationwide Credentialing, guest Physicians using Nationwide, and our staff.

"We at Nationwide feel it's important to educate the Medical Community on the misconception of the Credentialing process and the importance of it being correct for the practice to be successful. There are (3) three main components of a successful practice:

1. The expertise of the Physician in their chosen field of Medicine.
2. The Contract Management and the Credentialing process of all Health Plans.
3. Billing and the importance of follow-up.

Without all three of these components a practice is doomed to fail. We're excited about the opportunity to help educate the health care providers and to provide a much needed service."

EXCELLENCE through TRAINING!

Nationwide Credentialing believes the "ONLY" way to be the "BEST" at what we do is to continue training! Pictured above is CEO Tammy Luker conducting training with a portion of the staff at Nationwide. In the ever changing Credentialing field continued training is essential. Nationwide stays on top of the "revolving door" regulations and changes in the industry by scheduling training regularly with its staff. These training sessions are an ongoing process and one that we feel is paramount to the success of the Physicians and Facilities we serve.

player. Because of this Karen was promoted to the position of Provider Relations Manager in August of 2011 when the company was purchased and re-named Nationwide Credentialing. When asked what her statement was regarding our customers she responded, "Nationwide Credentialing functions as an extension of a provider's office. Our ultimate goal is to represent each as if they were our only provider. We take great pride in our customer relations not only with the provider's office, but also with the credibility and relations we've established through the years with the contracting and credentialing representatives for the facilities, health plans and delegated groups we work with on your behalf. We look forward to maintaining those relationships while building new ones in order to better service our clients. We are all in this as a team and "SUCCESS" feels great!"

Nationwide Credentialing is a preferred vendor of the Texas Medical Association.
